HERO

Skincare, studied.

Two serums. Every ingredient printed. Every active named at the concentration it is used.

Buttons: Shop the serums · Read the ingredients

TRUST STRIP — DIRECTLY UNDER THE HERO, THREE SHORT ITEMS

Independently tested. Both serums tested at PCSIR Laboratories, Islamabad. Mercury: not detectable.

Every ingredient printed. Full INCI on every bottle, every box and every product page.

No fairness claims. Ever. We do not sell skin lightening, and we never will.

WHY LAAL — THREE BLOCKS

We name the concentration. Niacinamide 5%. Zinc PCA 0.5%. Not "contains niacinamide" — the actual number, because the number is what decides whether it works.

We tested it before we sold it. Both formulations went to a government laboratory before a single bottle was sold. Patch test negative. Mercury not detectable. Report available on request.

We tell you who it is not for. Every product page says who should wait. A brand that only tells you the good part is telling you half of it.

CLOSING BLOCK ABOVE THE FOOTER

Two products. That is the whole range.

One treats. One repairs. Together they are a complete routine, and we would rather do two things properly than ten things adequately.

Niacinamide+

Niacinamide 5% · Zinc PCA 0.5% | Oil Control Serum | 30 ml

A lightweight water-based serum for skin that is oily, congested, blemish-prone, or carrying the marks that blemishes leave behind. Two actives, two different mechanisms, both aimed at the same problem.

WHAT IT DOES — FOUR BLOCKS

Reduces oil at the source. Niacinamide suppresses the synthesis of fatty acids and wax esters inside the sebaceous gland. Zinc PCA works on a separate pathway, inhibiting 5-alpha-reductase — the enzyme that drives androgen-linked oil production. Two mechanisms, not one repeated.

Calms the inflammation behind blemishes. Niacinamide dampens the inflammatory signalling that turns a blocked pore into a red, painful one. Zinc PCA adds bacteriostatic activity against Cutibacterium acnes — without the resistance concerns of topical antibiotics.

Strengthens the skin barrier. Niacinamide increases your skin's own production of ceramides and barrier lipids, reducing water loss and reactivity. This is why oily skin on niacinamide usually becomes less sensitive over time, not more.

Fades the marks blemishes leave behind. Niacinamide interrupts the transfer of pigment from melanocytes to surface skin cells, so brown or red marks left after a spot heals fade faster and more evenly. No bleaching, no pigment-cell damage.

WHAT TO EXPECT, AND WHEN

Week 1–2 — skin feels more hydrated and slightly smoother. Nothing dramatic. This is normal.

Week 2–4 — redness around active blemishes settles. Midday shine starts to reduce.

Week 4–8 — visible reduction in oiliness. Fewer new inflamed blemishes appearing.

Week 8–12 — pores look less obvious. Post-blemish marks visibly lighter and more even.

On purging: niacinamide has no mechanism that accelerates skin cell turnover, so it does not cause a purge. If you break out after starting any new product, that is a reaction to the formula, not a purge — stop and reassess.

WHO IT IS FOR

Oily skin · combination skin · blemish-prone skin · post-blemish marks · enlarged-looking pores · skin under humidity stress · men, whose higher baseline sebum output makes this formula particularly well suited

WHO SHOULD WAIT, OR ASK FIRST

Known niacinamide sensitivity · rosacea-prone or highly reactive skin · a damaged barrier or broken skin · anyone on prescription acne treatment · severe, cystic or nodular acne, which needs a dermatologist · pregnancy and breastfeeding, check with your clinician · children under 12

HOW TO USE

Morning — cleanse, pat until barely damp, apply 3–4 drops avoiding the eye area, follow with moisturiser, then broad-spectrum SPF 30 or higher.

Night — cleanse, pat, apply 3–4 drops, follow with moisturiser.

Frequency — twice daily from day one for most skin. Reactive skin: every third night for two weeks, then increase.

Order — serums go on before creams and oils. Thinnest to thickest, always.

FULL INGREDIENT LIST — MUST BE VISIBLE, NEVER COLLAPSED

Aqua (water), Niacinamide, Zinc PCA, Sodium PCA, Glycerin (vegetable), Propylene Glycol, Hydroxyethylcellulose, Polysorbate, Acrylates Crosspolymer, Phenoxyethanol.

Listed in descending order of concentration. Phenoxyethanol is used below 1% as a broad-spectrum preservative. No parabens, no added fragrance, no denatured alcohol, no mineral oil, no colourants.

Hyaluronic+

Hyaluronic Acid · B5 · Vitamin E · B3 | Barrier Repair Serum | 30 ml

A calm, multi-vitamin serum for skin that is dry, tight, stressed, over-exfoliated, or simply worn out by weather and actives. Where Niacinamide+ treats, Hyaluronic+ repairs.

WHAT IT DOES — THREE BLOCKS

Rebuilds a barrier that is not holding water. Skin that feels tight after cleansing, stings when products go on, or looks dull and flaky is losing water through a damaged surface. Hyaluronic acid and panthenol draw and hold water at the surface; niacinamide increases the skin's own barrier lipid production so it stays there.

Calms skin that has been pushed too hard. Over-exfoliation, harsh cleansers, strong actives used too often, sun, wind and air conditioning all leave skin reactive. Allantoin and panthenol are among the most reliable soothing agents in cosmetic formulation, and the vitamin E ester adds antioxidant support.

Makes stronger actives tolerable. The most common reason people abandon an effective routine is irritation. A barrier serum used alongside a treatment serum is the difference between stopping in week two and still using it in month three.

WHAT TO EXPECT, AND WHEN

First use — immediate relief of tightness. Skin feels comfortable rather than coated.

Week 1-2 — measurable improvement in hydration. Flaking and rough patches settle.

Week 2-4 — redness and reactivity reduce. Products that used to sting stop stinging.

Week 4-8 — barrier function stabilises. Skin holds moisture through the day.

WHO IT IS FOR

Dry and dehydrated skin · sensitised or over-exfoliated skin · anyone starting a treatment routine · air-conditioned and centrally heated environments · post-sun and post-wind exposure · sensitive skin that reacts to most products · all skin types, including oily — oily skin can still be dehydrated, and often is

WHO SHOULD WAIT, OR ASK FIRST

Known sensitivity to any listed ingredient · broken skin, open lesions or infected areas · diagnosed inflammatory skin disease in an active flare · pregnancy and breastfeeding, check with your clinician · children under 12 · if you want oil control, this is not that product — Niacinamide+ is

HOW TO USE

Morning and night — cleanse, pat until barely damp, apply 3-4 drops, follow with moisturiser. SPF 30 or higher in the morning.

With Niacinamide+ — apply Niacinamide+ first, wait about a minute, then Hyaluronic+. Or alternate: one in the morning, one at night.

Recovery — during a flare of tightness or irritation, use Hyaluronic+ alone and pause all actives until skin settles.

Important: apply to damp skin and seal with a moisturiser within about a minute. Hyaluronic acid pulls water toward wherever it is — on damp skin under a moisturiser it pulls water in; on dry skin in a dry room with nothing on top, it pulls water out. This is the single most common reason people say hyaluronic acid did not work for them.

FULL INGREDIENT LIST — MUST BE VISIBLE, NEVER COLLAPSED

Aqua (water), Niacinamide, D-Panthenol (Provitamin B5), Sodium Hyaluronate (Hyaluronic Acid), Tocopheryl Acetate (Vitamin E), Pyridoxine (Vitamin B6), Amino Acids, Allantoin, Phenoxyethanol.

Listed in descending order of concentration. Phenoxyethanol is used below 1% as a broad-spectrum preservative. No parabens, no added fragrance, no denatured alcohol, no mineral oil, no colourants.

7 · FAQ — PUT THIS ON BOTH PRODUCT PAGES

Can I use both serums?	Yes. Niacinamide+ first, Hyaluronic+ about a minute later. Or split them — one in the morning, one at night.
Will this purge my skin?	No. Niacinamide has no mechanism that speeds up cell turnover, so there is nothing to purge. Breaking out means the formula does not suit you — stop and message us.

Can I use it with retinol or acids?	Hyaluronic+ yes, and it will make them easier to tolerate. Niacinamide+ on alternate nights, or at the opposite end of the day.
Is it safe in pregnancy?	Topical niacinamide, panthenol and hyaluronic acid at cosmetic concentrations are generally considered low risk. Confirm with your clinician before starting anything new.
How soon will I see a difference?	Oiliness in 2–4 weeks. Fewer new blemishes in 4–8. Marks and pores in 8–12. Anyone promising three days is selling you something else.
Can I wear it under makeup?	Yes. Give it about sixty seconds to absorb, then moisturiser, then base.
Does it work on men's skin?	Yes, and often faster. Higher baseline sebum output means the change in oiliness is usually more visible.
It stings. What now?	Stop. Use Hyaluronic+ alone for two weeks until the barrier settles, then reintroduce Niacinamide+ every third night. If stinging returns, it is not the product for you.
Around my eyes?	Keep it off the immediate eye area and the lid margin. The orbital bone outward is fine.
Do I still need sunscreen?	Always. Neither serum causes photosensitivity, but pigmentation and marks will not fade while the sun keeps re-triggering them.
My skin is oily but flaky.	That is dehydration, not dryness, and it is the most common presentation we see. Use both serums.
How long does a bottle last?	At 3–4 drops twice daily, six to eight weeks.

8 · ABOUT PAGE COPY

Why this brand exists

Seven in ten Pakistani women who use skin-lightening products are estimated to be at risk of mercury exposure. That single number is the reason LAAL exists.

Walk into most pharmacies in Pakistan and read the back of what is on the shelf. Very little of it would survive five minutes of scrutiny against the pharmacology it claims to be built on. Mercury listed as calomel. Hydroquinone at concentrations that should require a prescription. Class-one topical corticosteroids sold in unlabelled tubs from wholesale markets as "fairness mixes". Products marketed to teenagers with no ingredient list at all.

LAAL is the answer to that. Two serums. Every ingredient printed. Every active named at the concentration it is used. Nothing in either bottle that we are not prepared to explain, ingredient by ingredient, to anyone who asks.

We do not sell fairness. There is no such thing as a safe skin-lightening shortcut, and we will never build one. What we sell is oil control, barrier repair, and the honest management of blemishes and the marks they leave behind.

NEVER IN A LAAL BOTTLE

Mercury compounds · hydroquinone · topical corticosteroids · retinoic acid · fairness or skin-lightening claims · undisclosed fragrance

WHERE THESE PRODUCTS ARE MADE

Both serums are manufactured and filled to our specification by a Karachi-based contract manufacturer holding ISO 22716:2007 (Cosmetics — Good Manufacturing Practices) and ISO 9001:2015 (Quality Management) certification. Every batch is dispatched with a quality-control report. Batch number, manufacture date and expiry date are printed on the base of every bottle.

INDEPENDENTLY TESTED

Both formulations were submitted to PCSIR Laboratories Islamabad — a Government of Pakistan laboratory — before a single bottle was sold. Patch test: negative, both serums. pH: 5.50 and 5.88, skin-compatible. Mercury: not detectable. Yeast and mould: not detectable. Report available on request.
